THE EDITOR'S LETTERS

New York is always bustling with zealous artists, community organizers, DIY celebrants, managers, bookers and label runners who churn the butter of our music world, but CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival week is special. With an influx of national and international bands and industry insiders, the city's musical fervor and industry knowledge gets amplified to the point of window rattling. Now is the time to hit those venues and absorb as much new music as your eardrums can handle.

But CMJ isn't just about watching the people on the stage; it's also about networking with those who work behind the curtain. While you hobnob though, remember that no one fell into the music business without a genuine love for a song, an artist or a scene. Forget that in business school you were constantly told to "sell yourself"—and please scratch that grating "Please advise" from emails unless the advice you want is "Please ask a direct question." We started as eager college radio DJs, bloggers or zinesters—hell, we might still moonlight in the same positions—going all-in for the love of the game. So for a week let's remember what first sold us on the industry: the music, the people and the community. Unadulterated passion sells itself, no gimmick needed.

CASIOKIDS

Aabenbaringen Over Aaskammen POLYVINYL

Norwegian synth-poppers Casiokids' latest LP, whose title translates to "the revelation over the mountain," is lush, mysterious and brimming with wildness. Lithe basslines creep alongside maracas and bongos, and slinky, loopy electronica numbers lurk in the shadows like jungle creatures. "Selskapets Triste Avslutning" sees several members of Of Montreal adding their freak-funk to the mix, while the glimmering "Kaskaden" playfully blends Eastern folk and throbbing house. Under the unifying sound of Casiokids' youthful pop, African, Asian and Norwegian influences combine to create the ultimate musical expedition. Grab your safari hat. ZC

GAUNTLET HAIR

Gauntlet Hair DEAD OCEANS

On its debut LP, Colorado-based duo Gauntlet Hair combines a lo-fi sound with hard-hitting synthesized basslines, adding color to the textures we have come to expect from the band's previous singles. Comprised of best friends Andy R. and Craig Nice, who have been playing music together since they were both teenagers, the band is influenced as much from indie rock as it is from club rap. "Top Bunk" highlights the best of Gauntlet Hair, exploring a fantastical landscape of echoing guitar lines, soaring vocal melodies with extreme spatial depth and floor-shaking bass and drum. BP

MAYER HAWTHORNE

How Do You Do UNIVERSAL REPUBLIC

Mayer Hawthorne's new album could have been hauled up from some vault in Detroit and marketed as a lost gem of Motown. Fans of that style will think Hawthorne a saint, as his voice flawlessly recreates sounds popularized by Marvin Gaye and Barry White. Songs like "Finally Falling," "Hooked" and "Stick Around" are the height of Hawthorne's musical recreation, while "The Walk" breaks the old-school illusion by unnecessarily including some rough language. Musicianship on the album is solid, and the production is squeaky clean, true to Motown form. The bass walks, the keys talk, and horns squawk along with solid, groovy drums. But the album is all roots and no branches, as Hawthorne does little to move beyond the 1960s sounds, making the LP more revisit than revision. AE

JUSTICE

Audio, Video, Disco ED BANGER

Justice is an all-in, all the time kind of outfit. The leather-clad French import is still hanging onto its cross (now in stone) shtick, and the duo, Gaspard Augé and Xavier De Rosnay, still sounds just as large as on its debut album, †. Audio, Video, Disco has a rock bend—as rock as bass-blastin' bangers can get without going all-out LCD Soundsystem on your ears—but with tracks like "Civilization," the album's first single, the record hollers ambitious at a thousand decibels. The follow-up single, "Audio, Video, Disco," is subdued in comparison to Justice's signature distortion-based dancehall tracks, but it doesn't fail to get the party rolling. LH

DAVID LYNCH

Crazy Clown Time PIAS AMERICA

Rock 'n' roll's a young man's game, but the blues get better with time. At the age of 65, film director David Lynch releases his debut album, a dark and moody work of what he calls "modern blues." Heavy on the whammy bar, minor chords and vocal reverb, Lynch's musical vision opts for simple beats, minimal bass and ambient synthesizer, as he croons and vocoders his way through a macabre-sounding swamp of electrified blues. But Lynch keeps the LP from being a bum trip by injecting his weird, heady wit into songs like "Strange And Unproductive Thinking," where a long, robotic monologue about "the goal of evolution" turns into a speech touting a "world free of tooth decay." ES

MY BRIGHTEST DIAMOND

All Things Unwind ASTHMATIC KITTY

Shara Worden returns with a handful of pop songs written for chamber ensemble yMusic, the New York-based sextet led by Rob Moose (Antony And The Johnsons) and C.J. Camerieri (Sufjan Stevens, Bon Iver). On the LP, Worden's powerful alto engages in a give-and-take with lushly scored clarinets, acoustic guitars, flutes, violins and cellos. The lyrics pick up on the theme of push-pull between opposites, musing about the makeup of the atom and contrasting Worden's newborn son's joy ("I Have Never Loved Someone") with bleak portraits of her recession-era Detroit hometown ("High Low Middle"). But Worden has a theory about how reconciliation can happen in this world of tension, and she offers it on the record's elegantly bouncy first song, "We Added It Up": "Love binds the world." DR

TRIPLE A

DEER TICK

Divine Providence PARTISAN

With a shameless attitude and a primitive rasp to his voice, guitarist John McCauley leads the Providence, RI, folk-rock band through drunken nights and heartbroken nostalgia. The rhythm section grounds these rawer and rougher themes with unmistakable power and a quiet confidence that prices simplicity over showboating. While the early tracks show off McCauley's uncensored desires, the latter ones reassure that he has the heart to get away with it. But despite some serious emotional play and a couple of quiet moments, Deer Tick is still pure rock. RN

ROOTS MANUVA

4everevolution BIG DADA

London rapper Roots Manuva flaunts his versatility on his eighth full-length release, dipping into everything from reggae to electro pop. Single "Watch Me Dance" is sure to be playing in every club in London this fall, and it's indicative of the rest of the hook-ridden party songs on 4everevolution. While the album sometimes loses its way in murky, experimental electronica, Roots Manuva's rhymes always hold the songs together. But the real strength of the album is its range: "Here We Go Again" is a catchy R&B song, "Wha' Mek?" has a Jamaican feel to it, and "The Throes Of It" has a spacey, electronic beat reminiscent of Krautrock. KS

LOUD ROCK

MACHINE HEAD

Unto The Locusts ROADRUNNER

Four years after its Grammy-nominated The Blackening, Machine Head is back with its seventh album. Unto The Locusts contains only seven songs, but the shortest clocks in at almost six minutes. Most of the songs start off slow and build up to a furiously fast pace, but all have enough time to be multifaceted. Album opener "I Am Hell (Sonata In C#)" is broken into three parts and structured like a classical sonata. It begins with an a capella harmony chanted in Latin before shifting into painfully fast double-bass triplets and guitar shredding guaranteed to melt your face off. KB

Le Grande Cantatrice Malienne Vol. 3

AWESOME TAPES FROM AFRICA

This 1982 reissue of a vinyl import from the Ivory Coast is the first release for Awesome Tapes From Africa. The label that started as a blog to make the sounds of the African continent more available is off to a fantastic start with Doumbia's lilting voice leading the way. Accompanied by guitar, piano, kamale ngoni (a type of harp from West Africa) and percussion, Doumbia's sailing vocals gently swing to the didadi rhythm. But beneath the light sound Doumbia popularized throughout her career are lyrics on women's rights and the plight of the younger generation of West Africa. KM

ELIZABETH!

Brainchildren CANOPY JAZZ

Vocalist, trombonist, songwriter and storyteller Elizabeth Dotson-Westphalen is joined by Jason Domnarski, Rob Jost and Robert Di Pietro on her new LP. Along with demonstrating Dotson-Westphalen's soothing vocals, the beautiful tone of her horn and the cohesiveness of the ensemble, each track aids in telling a story of love, tragedy, relationships and even childhood innocence. The fact that Brainchildren focuses a great deal on Elizabeth!'s singer/songwriter talents should not scare away any diehard jazz listeners. OLIVIA TREMOR CONTROL

Music From The Unrealized Film Script: Dusk At Cubist Castle and Black Foliage: Animation Music Volume One

CHUNKLET INDUSTRIES

The Olivia Tremor Control formed in the '90s as part of the Elephant 6 collective that also included Apples In Stereo and Neutral Milk Hotel. Since the band's hiatus in early 2000, the OTC has existed more as a fading memory of pop songs and experimental sound collages. However, thanks to Chunklet Industries, these reissues have lifted the band back into the spotlight with bonus B-sides, U.K. singles, unreleased live sessions and outtakes in addition to the original tracklists. BP

ON THE VERGE: GOTYE

UNITING POP FANS AND METAL HEADS, ONE SONG AT A TIME

by MARISA AVELING

Potential earmarks of success: sold-out national tours; two platinum-selling albums; Ashton Kutcher tweeting about you; Lily Allen tweeting about you ... Chad Kroeger from Nickelback playing your track in his studio?

All of the above has happened to Wally De Backer, the tousle-haired musician behind Gotye, affectionately and near-officially known in Australia as Our Gotye (on par with Our Nic, Our Heath and Our Hugh). The stage name of the multi-instrumentalist and producer comes from his Belgian mother translating his birth name, Walter, into Flemish and then rolling that translation into French. As Gotye, De Backer records oddball, heartstring pop, using a "mixed recording songwriting process, kind of weaving a sampling DJ approach with bits from a sound-bites perspective," he explains via Skype from his home in Melbourne, the white cord of headphones trailing out from underneath his mop of hair.

De Backer's success started snowballing five years ago when he self-released his album Like Drawing Blood in Australia. It was a lush pop masterpiece that he threaded together with a sweep of emotion using borrowed samples and new sounds. The nation fell in love with it and, within a few months, promptly picked up more copies than De Backer expected for the entire lifespan of his second solo album.

A similar thing happened with Gotye's most recent release, Making Mirrors, which he recorded as a one-man band and producer inside of a barn about an hour outside of Melbourne. Listeners connected with his inadvertent accessibility and pushed Gotye to the top of the pops. Back in August, De Backer's album and its lead single, "Somebody That I Used To Know," landed a triumphant double punch at No. 1 on both the ARIA (Australian Recording Industry Association) album and single charts simultaneously—the first local act to do that since Silverchair in 2007. The video for the latter, featuring a naked Gotye and his naked female vocal counterpart, Kimbra, has also lifted De Backer's profile internationally with over 7 million YouTube views and counting at time of writing (and was what led Ashton to release his Gotye praise in under 140 chars to the Twittersphere).

"I feel like on this album I haven't made super challenging music," he says. "I just think I've made very diverse music." The 12-track LP brims with earnestness that shies away from being cheesy as De Backer grabs pop and gleefully whacks it off-kilter. De Backer knows what makes a song contagious, but he infiltrates the structure with weirdness—be it through field recordings of a fence twanging in the Australian outback for the song "Eyes Wide Open" or just his choice of electronics to pad out the production. "I really like a lot of odd music, I suppose," De Backer says.

Gotye has united the tastes of mothers and daughters, hipsters and bogans, and even pop fans and metal heads. "I think the lyrics and melody must be key to it," De Backer thinks aloud, "because I do get a lot of comments like, 'I'm a metal head, I love metal, I never listen to other music, but I really like your music.' The lyrics and the experience must be resonating somehow."

Gotye will perform Friday, October 21, at Santos Party House and Saturday, October 22, at Brooklyn Bowl during CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival.

WHY SO SERIOUS?

Joker's straight-faced Vision

by MARISA AVELING

Joker is speaking to CMJ down a grainy line from his hometown of Bristol, U.K., and may or may not be messing with us. It's 8 p.m. there, the 22-year-old just woke up, and through a mouthful of Doritos and one-word answers, he crunches that he is thinking about ordering some Chinese takeaway for breakfast. From this interview, it can be deduced that the producer is a young soul who prefers not to analyze what he's making, at his best when communicating through his so-called "purple" melodic bass music. Conversation? Not so much. What is the vision that you see for yourself? Joker: "I can kind of see it in my head, but I can't explain it."

Well, that's fair enough, since the producer otherwise known as Liam McLean has been thinking over this question for the past few years while working on a debut LP as his sweeping artist statement. Since 2007 there have been ripsnorter EPs, mixtapes and singles out on illustrious labels like Hyperdub, all of which shook dubstep out of its grey gloom with a thick slab of melody, but no extended body of work. This year, however, Joker's triumphantly wrestled to the crux of his existential existence and will exhale The Vision (Kapsize/4AD), his full-length debut, out into the bassosphere November 8.

When XLR8R checked in with Joker two years ago, he had 119 files swimming around on his computer in a folder named "Album." He's since managed to whittle this down to a more sizable number, and the final version of The Vision weighs in at 12 cuts. Whether it was intended or otherwise, Joker's choice of tracks pulls him away from the wompy bedroom-variety dubstep artist. "It's a newer me than everyone knows," he offers. "People who were into my stuff two years ago might take a second to catch onto it because they're [the songs] really quite different."

Joker has diversified his initial inclination toward richly melodic instrumental cuts like "Gully Brook Lane" (that first led to international kudos-slinging spearheaded by dubstep overlord Plastician) and littered half of The Vision with vocalists. "I listen to a lot of R&B stuff, so getting singers on my tracks was just going to happen," he says. Bass pin-up girl Jessie Ware attacks with an agony-and-ecstasy feel to the chart-friendly title track, a souped-up clubby pop hit; Silas from Danish synth-rock outfit Turboweekend adds theatrical light (and great ABBA-style English pronunciation) to Joker's wallowing dark. Joker goes for big sounds—epileptic, mutant bass and glimmering arpeggios—giving his guests an inviting place to start.

The Vision reaches for listeners beyond Joker's core, but it also grounds itself with the producer's darker roots. Bristol grime MCs like Buggsy, Shadz and Scarz, who hark back to Joker's days as an adolescent DJ for his old crew, add rapid-fire grit to the fittingly titled "Back In The Days." Instrumentals like "Tron," which Joker released on his own Kapsize label as a single last year, also give his enduring fans something to bite into. Some things just don't change. "You can't really make a good track or a bad track innit, and what's good is good," he riddles, seemingly deadpan. "I purposely try to put music in tracks."

Joker will perform Saturday, October 22, at Bowery Ballroom during CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival.

Only In Dreams

» M83's Anthony Gonzalez makes music with his eyes closed

by ELISSA STOLMAN

French electro-pop singer Anthony Gonzalez lives in Los Angeles and dreams about witches. "I had this crazy dream—maybe a nightmare," says the leading member of M83. He was skateboarding down a hill, he says, when a horde of witches descended upon him, "flying all around" and forcing him to maneuver around them at breakneck speed.

Gonzalez equates his dreams to "tons of pictures mixed together, tons of memories mixed together," things not worth interpreting. But these nighttime visions did fuel the production of his latest record, a double album aptly named Hurry Up, We're Dreaming. He calls it a "self-retrospective" work inspired by a mash-up of memories, which came to him in dreams, about his childhood in Antibes, France. The two-part effort is filled with sweeping, grandiose tracks draped in nostalgically retro 1980s instrumentation. Each track on the first disc, Gonzalez says, has a thematic and sonic "sibling" on the second, though it's a bit of a challenge to determine exactly which tracks are related. Some like "OK Pal" employ the same synth-like vocal yelp of first single "Midnight City" or its energetic and emotive tendencies, while others like "Train To Pluton" have a more ambient, winding appeal.

Assorted as it is, the albums are rooted in a theme that came to Gonzalez after he moved to L.A. just under two years ago. "I was feeling kind of lonely, and I missed my family a lot," says Gonzalez. "I started to remember dreams I used to dream of as a child." Gonzalez had "the most wonderful childhood" growing up in the South of France outside of Nice, and his latest album finds him yearning for the simplicity of a childhood where hard decisions were left to his parents. "I miss that, and it's something I'm never going to be able to live again. So I just want to catch the moment with my music," Gonzalez says.

As the concept for what became Hurry Up, We're Dreaming started to take root in Gonzalez's mind, he was approached at a festival by producer and Nine Inch Nails' touring bassist Justin Meldal-Johnsen about combining their creative forces. Meldal-Johnsen got involved with Hurry Up, We're Dreaming and brought an expert hand to the instruments Gonzalez was eager to try, including saxophone, flute and acoustic guitar. "I play a lot of instruments, but I'm bad at every instrument," Gonzalez says. "Justin just plays a couple of instruments, but he's so good at them. When he plays bass, every take is good." Gonzalez describes the lush, dramatic, dreamy end product as "cinematic," a style he began exploring while working on the soundtrack for the 2010 French film Black Heaven. The project didn't work out well due to tensions with the director, and Gonzalez's dissatisfaction with the experience has been well documented. Too well documented, he says.

"Do we have to talk about this?" he asks, shifting in his chair. "Every time I talk about it I just say bad things about it. My mother said, 'You have to stop talking about this movie,'" he says. "I just felt like I really tried to experiment with the music, but I was refused by the director. It was a waste of six months of my life."

Black Heaven will not mark the end of Gonzalez's foray into producing soundtracks though, as he moved to L.A. specifically to focus more of his time and energy on film music. "I can't wait to work on a movie where I see something and I say, 'Oh, I could work hours and hours on this' because I'm inspired," he says. But this ambition to break into Hollywood doesn't spell out the end of M83 so much as it signals a new direction for the artist that allows him to consider both sound and image.

WHO'S THE BOSS?

Donald Glover toys with a different Community as hip-hop's Childish Gambino

Story by DAN JACKSON

Illustration by JONATHAN ZAJDMAN

"Man, why does every black actor gotta rap some?" asks Donald Glover, aka Childish Gambino, on "Bonfire," the pugnacious first single from his upcoming album, Camp. "I don't know," he spits. "All I know is I'm the best one."

It's an emblematic Gambino moment: cocksure swagger cut with crippling self-doubt. As a public persona, Glover—who got his hip-hop moniker from a Wu-Tang Clan name generator in college—exists at the center of a Venn diagram with an almost infinite number of rings: network sitcom star on Community, stand-up comedian, former 30 Rock writer, early YouTube sensation with sketch team Derrick Comedy, LOL-worthy Twitter celebrity, dude in Gap ads and, perhaps most puzzling to some, rapper. With a nerdcore nasal delivery that out-wheezes Weezy, a penchant for emo Drake-ian hashtags and post-808s And Heartbreak production ambitions that incorporate everything from techno to indie rock, Glover is completely serious about his music, and yet, he can't stop being hilarious. After releasing an untitled EP last spring and touring the country with the IAMDONALD tour that combined stand-up, pre-taped sketches and music, Glover (along with his frequent collaborator composer Ludwig Göransson) wrote and recorded Camp, his first release for indie label Glassnote. In a recent interview, Glover talked to CMJ about the joys of saying poop, the perils of being too clever and what the future holds for a self-described "weird kid who likes to do stuff."

Recently on Twitter you wrote, "If my mom knew how much I watch The Simpsons, eat Gushers and use the n-word now, she'd probably have let me do it as a kid. Probably not." Is that sense of getting away with it a big part of your music?

I rap as Childish Gambino, but people know it's me. I think that's the appeal. There's true joy when I rap, and I get to say things that I don't say in normal life. Sometimes they're stupid; sometimes they're silly; sometimes they're funny; sometimes they're true. It's just stuff that you're not allowed to say as an adult—and with good reason! There's a lot of stuff you can't say or do, but that's why it's music and not a manifesto. I always liked listening to Eminem 'cause he said funny shit that people thought, or didn't think, in a weird, funny way. I feel the same way about Kanye and Pharcyde. There's a childlike element to it—like, "Aw, he said 'poop'!" If you're a joyful person, you still have that side to you.

What was the biggest challenge in making Camp?

Just trying to do things by instinct instead of making calculated choices; that's the hardest part for me. It's a lot about getting to that feeling level as opposed to looking at it as a mathematical equation, which I'm used to doing with jokes and things like that.

Do you ever write a lyric and say, "No, that's too funny. Childish Gambino wouldn't say that"?

Sometimes things are too clever. Sometimes I'll write it, and I'll be like, "Oh, this is too much about me having fun with a word."

Can you think of an example of a line that was "too clever"?

On [2010 album] Culdesac I was talking about money, of course, and I said, "Yeah, I've got paper like I just ate a muffin." And I was like, "That's so silly." I don't know if I would still do that—I mean, you get it, but you're like, "That's kinda silly." It's all about context. I say "I've got paper," so you think, "Oh, he's talking about money," but then I go, "like I ate a muffin," which is just ... adorable. Sometimes those clever lines fight against you. I think I learned to go with the flow of the music more and don't fight it or overthink it. Every song is like a relationship in that you have to just go with it instead of getting caught up in, "Does she really like me, or is this bullshit?"

Do your parents listen to your music or go to your shows?

Yeah, they went to the show in Atlanta. It was very strange for them. They were weirded out by it. I don't think anyone expects that for their kids. Atlanta was like the hometown show, so people knew all the words, and everyone knew me too, and I wasn't expecting that. At that point in the tour I was a little jaded to it. People come with posters, they scream your name, girls are yelling and trying to get backstage—it's a different world. When I first went on tour I was like, "This is insane," but by the end you're like, "Well, that's just what happens." But, I think for my parents, they were just floored. They're middle class, hard-working people. Also, I have my dad's name, so people were screaming my dad's name the whole show. That was weird for him. He came backstage and was like, "Wow, man, I've never seen anything like that." I was always a weird kid who liked to do stuff, but it was still probably really strange for them.

When you were 12, they weren't like, "Oh, one day he'll be a rapper onstage and—"

[As parents] "He'll do stand-up comedy bits about me, show some videos and then go into a rap concert!" [laughs] Yeah, it's a really weird world for them, but it's strange for me too.

Do you ever think about synthesizing all of your interests into one big project?

Yeah, I always try to think about new ways to be expressive and do something cool and interesting. But I don't wanna do anything too lame. It feels lame to be like, "It's a one-man show called DONNY BOY!"

So you don't have your version of Purple Rain coming out soon?

Nah. There was an idea for a show that was kinda like a fantastical version of my life, but Larry David kinda has that on lock. I wrote a TV show that I wanted to do, but the people I wanted involved weren't available, so we were gonna have to wait a while. So, yeah, there's stuff, but it's not perfect yet. Who knows? Maybe when I'm old I'll go crazy, and then I can make it. Then I'll get really fucking weird.

'Tis Better To Give

The Louisiana quintet Givers shares its powers of positivity

by CHRISTINE WERTHMAN

The saying goes that it takes more muscles to frown than it does to smile, but sometimes it's easier to subsist in sadness than to amp yourself to joy. This must be especially true for people in touring bands, who spend most of their time traveling around, squished into sardine can vans. For these folks, a low-energy skulk seems like an onstage posture that would be easier to maintain night after night, but Givers opts for the high-enthusiasm challenge.

The five players walk onto the stage of a sold-out Bowery Ballroom show in New York in June and begin the set not with a grand explosion but with a quiet guitar-and-bass-led groove. "There's a trick we figured out," says singer and guitarist Taylor Guarisco. "The first song, we always write some sort of intro that will start somewhat minimal, and then it builds, so by the time we're in fourth gear and ready to start the actual song, the intro's allowed us to wake up and let all of our eyes open all the way." And once the band members get through their warm-up, they set their buoyant, percussive sound free from the restraints, and the music and its makers go bouncing around like adorable escapees from a jack-in-the-box. The energy doesn't set fire to the show attendees as much as it appears to baffle them, with many moving offbeat as their bodies try to process exactly how to respond to this sudden good vibes flood that started as a trickle.

As the leaders of the show, Guarisco pogos around with his guitar, tongue hanging out of his mouth, and Tiffany Lamson whips her head around so much that it looks like she's going to smack her head on her drum-xylophone-tambourine station. It's like watching a little kid do a backflip into a pool and seeing her head whizz by only millimeters from the diving board.

"I went to the hospital earlier that day," Lamson later admits, but the rush of seeing the big crowd revved her up and made her temporarily forget that she'd been sick. "Something just woke up in my body and said, 'Yes, this is right.'" And there's a lot that just feels right about Givers and its onstage verve, which never appears half-assed or forced. It results from family-style closeness among the band members and an innate musical vibrancy that comes with growing up in Lafayette, LA, the Cajun cultural center of the United States.

Guarisco, Lamson, drummer Kirby Campbell and keyboardist Nick Stephan all come from Lafayette, with bassist Josh LeBlanc growing up just outside of it in a little town called Abbeville. The early-to-mid twenty-somethings all met somewhere between high school and college on the Lafayette music scene. But Guarisco and Lamson didn't solidify their ability to jive musically until they were both living near each other while students at the University Of New Orleans. "We were both studying chemistry," Lamson says. "Kidding, kidding. That would be weird."

"A lot of people study chemistry, Tiffany," Guarisco says, fake scolding. "They wouldn't think that was funny."

Lamson and Guarisco were both in line to study music in college, but their real training came earlier. Lamson has a background in percussion, and she spent her pre-college years working at a drum shop, playing drums in bands and even attending drum camp. Guarisco picked up the bass guitar in sixth grade, and though he now plays guitar in Givers, he mostly filled the role of bassist in bands in his musical past life. One of those bands was Feufollet, a Lafayette group whose sound is rooted in traditional Cajun folk music. This lively, down-home style, native to their town, certainly influenced the members of Givers, but Givers is not by any means a Cajun band.

"A lot of people somehow end up referring to our music as 'Cajun-infused, zydeco pop music,'" says Guarisco, "and in all reality, there's nothing Cajun about this band or zydeco for that matter." You won't see a fiddle or an accordion in Givers, but the Cajun inspiration does emerge in the band's rhythms, designed with dancing in mind. Guarisco cites the "smoky, chord-stomping guitar part" in the song "Saw You First," from the group's debut LP, In Light, released this year on Glassnote, as evidence of that inspiration. "Whenever I came up with it, like in the back of my mind, I was thanking Feufollet for opening me up to folk music and Cajun music," he says. "Before then, all I listened to was funky music, nothing that wasn't funky. Funk and jazz were like the only things that mattered to me until I opened up to all this folk music."

Listing funk, jazz and Cajun folk as some of his core influences might make Guarisco seem like a music nerd, one who thrives on rare records and releases from more obscure artists. But he's not a mainstream-shunning music snob, admitting that he also idolized the Red Hot Chili Peppers as a kid. "I just kind of grew up thinking that that's the coolest live stage energy you could have," he says, "to just be full throttle and make every song like the last song and make every show as expressive and heartfelt and energetic as it could possibly be." His appreciation of the California funk-punk rockers shows up in his band's rowdy live show, but it might also explain why Givers' music brings plenty of punch and melody.

The existence of joy and upbeat movements in the music also reflects the positivity the bandmates stir in each other. "It's definitely like a brother band," Guarisco says. "We're all brothers, and Tiffany is our sister." Thus, it's safe to conclude that the "We're all in this together" signoff at the end of every post on the old Givers blog reflects the group's bond, not a reference to the High School Musical song of the same name, right?

"That's Tiffany's trademark," says Guarisco. "Tiffany, explain yourself."

"Well, I live in a boat by the river," she says, "so I have no idea about anything in pop culture."

Givers will perform Thursday, October 20, at Terminal 5 and Saturday, October 22, at Brooklyn Bowl during CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival.

ACTING UP

ELIZABETH HARPER GETS ELECTRIC IN CLASS ACTRESS

by CHRISTINE WERTHMAN

The early chapters in Elizabeth Harper's life story all pointed to acting: Born and raised in the screen-star haven of L.A., Harper studied dramatic arts at University Of California, Berkeley, where she specialized in making weird voices and doing character bits in an improv group. And then she moved to New York City, where the whole tidy trajectory fell to bits. Instead of trying her luck at Upright Citizens Brigade, Harper turned her attentions to making music. She started with an acoustic guitar but eventually fell for the suave, sexy, synthesizer-based sounds she makes as the leader of Class Actress, the electro-pop trio she formed with Mark Richardson and Scott Rosenthal in 2009. Harper recently spoke to CMJ about the power of 1980s radio, the time capsule that is L.A. and ... psychoanalytic theory?

Are you a child of the '80s?

Well, I definitely wasn't born in the '90s. [laughs]

That's good. People who were born in the '90s aren't real people to me.

Exactly. I'm a child of the late '80s.

Do you credit the '80s vibe in your music to you being a kid of the era?

Well, in L.A. you spend most of your time in a car growing up. And as long as I can remember, driving from my grandmother's house back to my parents' house, the radio was always on, and all that music is ingrained inside my head. And it's funny because, I don't know if you've been to L.A. recently, but they still have Smiths and Depeche Mode night. We played a show last year, and afterward they [the venue] played like Smiths and New Order and the Cure, and I was like, "Oh my god, L.A. just doesn't change." It's a little ...

Slow to evolve?

I think it just kind of had its glory days—and they're still there. I think New York is more of an evolving scene.

Class Actress released its first EP, 2010's Journal Of Ardency, on Terrible Records, which is run by Grizzly Bear's Chris Taylor. Did that partnership with another Brooklyn musician happen because you were all in the same borough?

Yeah, he was dating a friend's manager, and so we all just kind of became friends. It was all very organic how it came together. It was the result of the close-knit community and a result of like people living down the block from each other.

Where was your first show?

Our first show was at Union Pool [laughs]. I remember I wore a black strapless jumpsuit.

Why did you name your debut LP Rapprocher (Carpark), a French word that I may be mispronouncing?

It's based on the psychoanalytical definition of the word rapprochement, which describes when a child is between 18 and 24 months and moves away from its mother for the first time and feels a sense of vulnerability and then turns around and goes back. And that moment, how the mother reacts to the child, can create fears of abandonment. And what I realized was that people reenact this moment throughout their lives, even without their mothers. It's not called Rapprocher because it's French or because it means "to come closer." It's based on the idea. Mark's getting a Ph.D. in psychology, so we spent half of the record talking about psychoanalytical theory.

Whoa, that's serious.

He gives it the "Class," and I give it the "Actress."

Class Actress will perform Tuesday, October 18, at Public Assembly and Thursday, October 20, at Music Hall Of Williamsburg during CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival.

NEW MUSIC REPORT

CMJ Music Marathon 2011 is upon us and the New Zealanders make the 8820-mile trek from their homeland to bring you their latest offering of new music from deep in the South Pacific. Kicking off opening night with their annual showcase at (le) Poisson Rouge on Bleecker Street with a traditional offering of new music, vodka and savory pies, what better way to start your CMJ week!

Remember to dig deep into your goodie bag, or pick up a copy of the latest CMJ compilation disc at their showcase to discover a bunch of new bands you didn't know you were a fan of.

CUT OFF YOUR HANDS
"FOOLING NO ONE"

Cut Off Your Hands formed in Auckland in 2006 following in the vein of local post punks The Mint Chicks and This Night Creeps, as well as being influenced largely by groups such as Gang of Four, Orange Juice, and Talking Heads. Fooling No One, from COYHs recently released sophomore album Hollow is certainly a departure from the 'angular aggression' of their first post punk offering. This latest single, with its catchy melodies seems to be tapping more into shared feelings of disaffection than youthful angst.

PRINCESS CHELSEA
"FRACK"

Currently touring the USA with fellow New Zealander Pikachunes, CMJ is a pit-stop for Princess Chelsea, the pseudonym of kiwi lass Chelsea Nikkel. On listening to her debut album Lil' Golden Book, you are drawn into a musical fairytale woven from songs about growing up and coming of age. But like every classic fairytale, behind the sweetness lies a deeper and slightly darker side to the story. Frack for example is what Chelsea describes as an attempt at a song that sounds like the end of the world.

MULCHZOID
"DARKNESS SUBLIME"

Mulchzoid is the electronic experimentation and musings of David Mulchay. David has been busy producing tunes since the 80s as a part of Flying Nun bands Jean Paul Sartre Experience and Superette. After taking the solo route in 2008 and using the moniker Mulchzoid, he released his fourth album Neck, which features the stand out track Darkness Sublime. At first listen this lighthearted, simple synth-led tune could easily be interpreted as a straightforward love song but in fact (according to it's author) the real meaning is a little more unusual....

PIKACHUNES
"NERVOUS"

The man behind the name, Miles 'Loveless' McDougall, created Pikachunes after he fractured his ulna while skateboarding, an injury that required reconstructive surgery. At the time, McDougall was majoring in Jazz performance and the injury left him unable to play. Out of frustration he created his debut self titled album Pikachunes, a first person account of the turmoil of moving to a new city to build a name as a musician. Nervous' has all the flavor of LCD Soundsystem's 'Someone Great' while maintaining a freshness rarely seen in new indie-electro outfits.

UNKNOWN MORTAL ORCHESTRA
"BICYCLE"

From an anonymous track on Band Camp to an international record deal with Fat Possum, the last year has been one hell of a ride for this three piece. It is in essence the brainchild of Kiwi Ruban Neilsen formerly of the Mint Chicks. Based in Portland Oregon, Ruban started jamming and tape recorded his break-beat psychedelic rock. The tunes were recorded for his own listening pleasure but he placed these online and within a matter of hours they were featured on a line-up of trendy taste-making sites and blogs. Joined by local Portland producer Jake Portrait on bass and teenage prodigy Julien Ehrich on drums the trio has been touring relentlessly all year.

STREET CHANT
"SCREAM WALK"

Hand-picked to play around Australia with supergroup The Dead Weather, Auckland three piece Street Chant have no problem sharing a stage with rock royalty. Their throw back to early nineties grunge with a side of punk live show saw them snap up the Critics Choice award at the New Zealand Music Awards in 2010 and since then they have played industry festivals SXSW and Big Sound. Scream Walk is taken from their critically acclaimed debut album Means.

THE GOLDEN AWESOME
"ASTRONOMY"

Emerging seemingly out of nowhere (Wellington actually) mid-2010, the band will be releasing their debut album Autumn this month via New Yorks M'lady's Records. Stylistically, The Golden Awesome are easily identifiable as a shoegaze band. Slow, blissful major-key riffs generated by a heavily overdriven guitar and bass provide an enveloping background to the seraphic harmonizer-multiplied voice of Stef Animal.

POPSTRANGERS
"HAPPY ACCIDENTS"

As the most recent signing to legendary New Zealand label Flying Nun, a CMJ spot for Popstrangers comes as no surprise. Originally hailing from Hamilton, this three piece's sound is emotionally charged post rock with bassist Adam Page and drummer Dave Larson providing a solid, noise-infused rhythm section while singer/guitarist Joel Flyger brings a touch of pop sensibility. Having just exchanged their old drummer for an ex member of the Vacants, recent EP Happy Accidents represents a move towards a heavier sound. Look forward to an exhilarating, aggressive live show.

SHE'S SO RAD
"FORMAT"

In contrast to Jeremy Toy's work as the soul-funk monster Opensouls, She's So Rad is his dreamy, electronic, fuzz-laden solo project. His first outing as a vocalist, Format features pounding drums thanks to Nick Gaffney (Cairo Knife Fight) and the vocal talents of Anji Sami. (The Sami Sisters).

TWO CARTOONS
"BETTER COAST"

Hailing from Dunedin, New Zealand, Two Cartoons comprises Isaac McFarlane and Bradley Craig. The duo formed earlier this year while on summer break from university with a mind to harness and channel the beautiful warm weather and their continued love for bands like Best Coast, Wavves and The Drums. Out of the ensuing whirlwind of creative process spilled the song Better Coast, a song which McFarlane describes as "being about the anticipation of returning to Dunedin and being back with all of my friends from University who scatter across the country during summer holidays, the title being a homage to one of our favorite bands."

EVIL TWINS
"HARDLY EVER THINK"

Evil Twins are Auckland sisters Lucy and Charlotte Stewart, who have just finished recording their debut EP. They are influenced by the likes of seminal Flying Nun acts Look Blue Go Purple and Chris Knox and if you don't believe me here is Hardly Ever Think from the aforementioned EP.

TINY RUINS
"LITTLE NOTES"

Bound by their delicate nature, Tiny Ruins songs lie within a space & time all of their own: 'Little Notes' a lover's airborne ode and the perkiest track on the album, was written and recorded on an impromptu tour of Northern Spain. Hollie Fullbrook's debut album Some Were Meant For Sea has been released on Australian label Spunk Records, it's songs follow a year spent performing and collaborating internationally with the likes of Joanna Newsom, Beach House and Holly Throsby.

PARALLEL DANCE ENSEMBLE
"JUICES"

Parallel Dance Ensemble is the disco-not-disco duo MC Coco Solid and Bobbi Soxx (producer Robin Hannibal) - who got together and collaborated after meeting at the Red Bull Music Academy. The offbeat pair pump out jams that are funny, slightly sinister and sassy as hell. Their sound is described as being reminiscent of 80's groups, Tom Tom Club, Pop Group and the Bush Tetras, but totally futuristic like M.I.A. or New Young Pony Club.

ANDREW KEOGHAN
"GLORIA (CLEAN SHEETS & A FISHBOWL)"

Andrew Keoghan fuses a groovy early eighties' new wave sound with today's carefully constructed new-folk for some contemporary good measure. Gloria, a standout track off his debut album Arctic Tales Divide was released this year to critical acclaim in his homeland, with the New Zealand Herald calling it 'a magical, multi-layered pop gem' and 'an early contender for local album of the year.'

CAIRO KNIFE FIGHT
"THE ORIGIN OF SLAVES"

This is the sound of a thousand bands being made by just two men, Aaron Tokona (formally of Weta) and Nick Gaffaney as Cairo Knife Fight. Gaffaney goes against the stereotype that men can't multitask playing drums, keys and singing simultaneously along with firebrand guitarist and loop pedal wizard Tokona. Listening to the Origin Of Slaves it comes with little surprise that their self-titled debut LP is up for Best Rock album at this years, New Zealand Music Awards.

Fortune Cookie Philosophy. New from The Compact.

A sure hit for college radio. Their signature laid-back pocket is felt as much as heard. Unlike so many jam bands, when you listen close there are actually songs under the solos. More tasty licks than a tapas bar. The Compact marry melody, lyrics and grooves for life. ~ Tad Wise, Roll Magazine.

YOU SAY FRANCE & I WHISTLE (Swe)

Whoever came up with the band name must have been dead drunk or just up for something fresh and snappy. Either way, what the name represents is the colourful hybrid of happiness and steaming frustration. A sweaty and dynamic live show is always to expect when it comes to the latest – and one of a kind –

Station Of The Year Nominees

CMJ is pleased to present the 2011 Station Of The Year nominees. All of these stations have continuously shown their dedication to college and non-commercial radio, and they set the standards for everything radio can do. From creating and maintaining original and inventive programming to staying a strong part of the college campus or local community, these stations do it all and do it well. Congrats, you've earned it!

CJLO 1690 AM

Montreal, QC
Concordia University
www.cjlo.com

Formed more than a decade ago, Concordia University's still-young CJLO has a longstanding history of dedicated volunteers. Broadcasting at 1000 watts at 1690 AM, CJLO's signal is heard across the college campus and the city of Montreal, but it can also be heard as far away as Ottawa and Burlington, VT. CJLO begand its AM broadcast in 2008; it was previously an online-only station. Making much more of its live sessions, CJLO has recorded numerous in-studio sessions with bands like Fucked Up, Brother Ali and Chuck Ragan. A College Radio Awards veteran, CJLO was a co-winner for Station Of The Year 2010 with fellow 2011 nominee WKDU.

KUOM 770 AM

Minneapolis, MN
University Of Minnesota Twin Cities
www.radiok.org

Broadcasting as Radio K since 1993, the University Of Minnesota's KUOM initially started off as an AM-only station. It has since expanded to the FM dial, now additionally broadcasting at 100.7, 106.5 and 104.5 FM. Radio K prides itself on its extensive genre-specific programming, boasting 15 shows that focus on the best of hip-hop, metal, punk, electronic and other types of music. Radio K is run completely by students, giving them a hands-on learning opportunity. It also breaks out of the college campus and onto the local music scene by sponsoring concerts at local venues each week.

WKDU 91.7 FM

Philadelphia, PA
Drexel University
www.wkdu.org

Celebrating its 40th anniversary as an FM station this year, WKDU is no stranger to the radio world. Many of its volunteer DJs have been involved with the station for multiple decades, and they host programming that extends beyond just music, including one show that regularly reviews films. WKDU also has a strong tie to the local Philadelphia music scene, getting involved with as many shows in the area as it can and putting on plenty of its own both on and off the air, including the popular annual Reggae Marathon. Another College Radio Awards favorite, WKDU was co-winner for Station Of The Year 2010 with CJLO.

WLUW 88.7 FM

Chicago, IL
Loyola University
www.wluw.org

Located in the Rogers Park neighborhood of Chicago, WLUW embraces both the city's thriving music scene and its multi-cultural background. The station participates in an annual broadcast live from the Lollapalooza Music Festival in Grant Park, as well as a monthly battle of the bands competition called College Spaceout. WLUW's diverse schedule boasts the longest-running Latin alternative rock show in the U.S. (Rock Sin Anestesia), as well as a Haitian music and news show, a religious Ethiopian program, a talk show on Muslim issues and more. WLUW's mission is to "present the newest independent music before anyone else to the city of Chicago."

College Day culminates with the 2011 College Radio Awards. These awards recognize dedicated radio stations and industry members who have helped to keep college radio thriving. The awards ceremony will take place Thursday, October 20, at 4:00 p.m. in NYU's Rosenthal Pavilion. On-site voting will take place during College Day at CMJ Music Marathon & Film Festival. Anyone with a CMJ badge is eligible to vote. This year's awards are provided by official College Day artist Print Mafia. And the nominees are ...
